Note that we’re using image_tag directly to get the file from app/assets/images, and setting the image element up as the elementToChange target of the controller.

And so we have a button that instantly flips the image when clicked. But what if we didn’t want that transition to be instantaneous?