one of the five members was Captain P. de Ste Croix, someone who had had ‘long experience with the British India Steam Navigation Company’. Ibid., vol. 1, pp. 10, 63.

[77] Stuart, Manual of the Tinnevelly District, p. 9. At the time of our story, the 2nd grade port officer was W.S. Carylon and the 5th grade port officer was T.S. Bassett. W.M. Smith was superintendent of the port while the medical officer was W.F. Dunlop. At the peak of the Swadeshi movement, the port officer was Lieutenant W.L. Kelly who also doubled as superintendent of pearl and chank fishery—he helped Sub-Collector Ashe in suppressing the protesters on 13 March 1908, as did Cecil Ewald Rhenius, assistant commissioner of salt. Madras Asylum Press Almanac, 1908.

[78] Pate, Madras District Gazetteers: Tinnevelly, p. 448.

[79] Illustrated Guide to the South Indian Railway, p. 282.

[80] Ibid., p. 283.

[81] Handbook of the Services of the BISN, 1906, p. 78. BIS/29/2. BISN Papers.

[82] The Hindu, 7-9-1908.

[83] BISNCo. Intended Time Tables, 1908, p. 40, BIS/29/2. BISN Papers.

[84] Illustrated Guide to the South Indian Railway, p. 283.

[85] The Hindu, 15-5-1908.

[86] The Hindu, 7-9-1908.

[87] Ibid.

[88] Illustrated Guide to the South Indian Railway, p. 283.

[89] The Hindu, 7-9-1908.