[1] Evidence of PW 10 C. Thambusami Pillai, IOL: L/P&J/6/857.

[2] The Hindu, 26-3-1908.

[3] Shanmugasundaram Pillai, 'Thaithirunadum Tharaka Mandiramum', Lokobakari, 29-11-1947.

[4] VOC's abetment of sedition case judgment in G.O. no. 1542, Judicial & Confidential, 3-10-1911, para 32.

[5] India, 3-4-1909.

[6] VOC, Suyasarithai, p. 45n.

[7] MPAI, 1907, para 430.

[8] Ibid., para 559(b).

[9] Somasundara Bharati lived in Tuticorin until 1920 before moving to Madurai. A successful lawyer, he was later appointed as professor of Tamil at Annamalai University. Until his death in 1959, he was a strong supporter of the Congress party though he took a strident position against the Rajaji government during the anti-Hindi agitation (1937–39). His daughter Lakshmi was a Congress legislator and his son-in-law, L. Krishnaswamy Bharati, a member of the Constituent Assembly.

[10] Swadesamitran, 24-3-1919.

[11] MPAI, 1908, para 185.

[12] IOL: L/P&J/6/857.

[13] Exhibit XII, IOL: L/P&J/6/857.

[14] Exhibit XIII, IOL: L/P&J/6/857.

[15] Exhibit XIV, IOL: L/P&J/6/857.

[16] Exhibit XI, letter dated 12-2-1907, IOL: L/P&J/6/857. Apparently, this is a badly damaged letter. The ellipses in square brackets are noted as 'torn' in the court exhibit.

[17] Thambusami Pillai got his just deserts when Justice A.F. Pinhey, dismissed him as 'a worthless creature' in his judgment in VOC's abetment of sedition case (para 16).

[18] Evidence of PW 10 C. Thambusami Pillai, IOL: L/P&J/6/857.

[19] T&TD, p. 20.

[20] MPAI, 1907, para 161; also see SSNCo's advertisement in The Hindu, 27-11-1907.

[21] Bande Mataram, 24-3-1907, SSNCo's advertisement.