[53] This short note on Vedamurthi Mudaliar is based on MPAI, 1907, para 786; MPAI, 1909, para 252; G.O. no. 515, Public, 1-7-1907; Note on Indian enterprise in navigation published in Tamil National Pathirikai, March 1907, reproduced in T.M.C. Raghunathan, 'Va.Oo.Chi. Nadathiya Desiya Pathirikai', Sangoli, 18(7), 20-9-1985; P. Sri., 'S. Vedamurthi Mudaliar', Swadesamitran, 28-9-1947 reprinted in Kumari Malar, January 1983; P. Sri., Konjamo Ninaivin Vellam, pp. 110–112.
Later in 1907, after his exit from SSNCo, Vedamurthi Mudaliar lived in Virudupatti with his brother-in-law. By 1911, he was in Madras City to launch an English monthly, The International Pen Portraits. About a year later he moved to Rangoon where he edited the Rangoon Daily Mail, where he also published an edited book, Confessions of a Maharajah. It is said that he represented Burma in the Imperial Council and died accidentally when taking a holy dip in the Ganga, sometime in the early 1930s. P. Sri. also states that the two biographical sketches of VOC, in Tamil and English, published in 1908 and1909 respectively, were in fact penned by him though the books appeared in the name of M. Krishnasami Aiyer.
