[22] Pandithurai Thevar, on his way to Tirunelveli from Ramnad to attend the meeting, stopped at Madurai where he was seen off by 'a large crowd of his servants and retainers' to shouts of Vande Mataram. According to a police report he had ordered his servants to say Vande Mataram as a salutation, and 'enforce[d] this practice very strictly in his palace'. MPAI, 1908, para 937.
