Imperial Legislative Council, he also wielded political clout.

[19] IMMC, report.

[20] Mehta, Indian Shipping, p. 62. Adding insult to injury, the Government of India Act, 1935 took away the power of the Indian legislature to foster Indian shipping. Further, the British policy of indifference to shipping during World War II belied any remaining hopes.

[21] See Morarjee, 'Indian Mercantile Marine', pp. 68–71.

[22] IMMC, report.

[23] IMMC, report, p. 19.

[24] Deferred rebate system was an arrangement where the shipper paid a higher freight on the agreement that a larger portion of it would be refunded after a certain number of years provided he did not use other shipping lines—a ruse to ensure shippers did not shift their allegiance.

[25] Oral evidence of Walchand Hirachand, IMMC, evidence volume, pp. 153–54.

[26] IMMC, report, pp. 19–20.

[27] Oral evidence of R. Severs, IMMC, evidence volume, p. 558.

[28] Oral evidence of Killick Nixon and Company, ibid., p. 107.

[29] Oral evidence of F.H. Cooke, ibid., p. 580.

[30] Oral evidence of F.H. Cooke, ibid., p. 581. Scindia's Walchand Hirachand was exceptional in making a positive mention of SSNCo in his evidence. Ibid., p. 154.

[31] The Hindu, 18-1-1924. The only Tamil paper that commented on this committee's report, as far as I could make out, was Kumaran, 23-7-1924, editorial.

[32] Written statement of S.D. Krishna Aiyangar, IMMC, evidence volume, pp. 622–23.

[33] Oral evidence of S.D. Krishna Aiyangar, Ibid., p. 630.

[34] Written statement of S.D. Krishna Aiyangar, ibid., pp. 623–24.

[35] Ibid., p. 625.

[36] Oral evidence of S.D. Krishna Aiyangar, ibid., pp. 628–29.

[37] Oral evidence of S.D. Krishna Aiyangar, ibid., p. 633.

[38] Ibid.

[39] Ibid., p. 627.