2.3 Utilization of Leftover Food

Aim:

To learn how to use leftover foods

Apparatus:

Stove and kitchen utensils

Procedure

1. Raw food

Raw foods are perishable and semi perishable that supplied to the kitchens for preparation. The fresh forms of foods are also considered as leftovers when the quantities are not enough for large scale production of a single item for service.

2. Partly cooked or prepared food

Plate 2.3 Juice

These include marinated meats, paneer, unserved salads in refrigeration, juices, boiled eggs, fermented mixtures as doughs and batters. These can be creatively used as barbecued meats with vegetables added on before cooking. Small amounts of juices can be used as toppings for fruit pies, custards, shakes, puddings and cakes.

3. Cooked Foods

When cooked food remains in large quantities it usually gets pilfered, or wasted though mishandling and spoilage. Unless it is reused in some way and presented to customers again soon after.

Since cooked food cannot be stored for too long without its quality deteriorating, it is important to devise ways of incorporating it as soon as possible into new dishes or into dishes in which the food is unrecognisable.

Examples

Raw food

Plate 2.4 Chutney

Leftover raw chopped onion and tomatoes can be made into Onion chutney.

Partly prepared food

Leftover fruit juices can be made into a fruit punch.
