C. Food and Beverage Service Equipment

Food and beverage service equipment may be divided into glassware, chinaware and tableware. 'Tableware' is a term includes flatware, cutlery and hollow ware. 'Flatware' is a term used to denote spoon and fork, as well as serving flats. 'Cutlery' refers to knives and other cutting implements. 'Holloware' consists of any other item apart from flatware and cutlery. For example, tea pots, milk jugs and serving dishes.

1. Glassware

Glassware refers to glass and drink ware items besides table ware. The term usually refers to the drinking vessels. Well-designed glassware combines elegance, strength and stability. It should be fine and smooth rimmed. Many standard patterns and sizes of glassware are available to serve each drink. The raw materials used for manufacturing glassware are silica, sand and lime (soda ash).

Some of the types of glassware are given below:

a. Tom Collins: Tall and thin glasses used for serving drinks.

b. Champagne Glasses: They are fluted with the tall and narrow bowl for holding champagne. The small opening helps to keep the carbonation inside the glass for longer time.
