3. Incentives:

Incentive is the last process of motivation. After having the job, employees should be provided with competitive wages. It supports to solve and address the need or expectation. Employees come into an organisation to sell their knowledge, skill and labour. For such selling of their labour, employees will get incentives.

Special motivational techniques include using money, encouraging participation and improving the Quality of Working Life of an employee.

8.3 Definition of Motivation

"Motivation is a general term applying to the entire class of drives, desires, needs, wishes and similar forces that induce an individual or a group of people to work".

- Koontz and o' Donnell.

"Motivation means a process of stimulating people to action to accomplish goals".

- William G. Scott

8.4 Characteristics of Motivation

Characteristics of motivation are described as under:

1. Motivation is need based: If there is no need for an individual, the process of motivation fails.
2. Motivation is a continuous process : Most of the human needs are of recurring nature, some of the needs of individuals shall always be found to be unfulfilled. Thus motivational process can be enforced on a continuous basis.
3. Motivation is a planned process: To produce a desired result by stimulating and influencing human behavior for the best realization of the common objective. Two individuals could not be motivated in exactly similar manner as people differ in this case of approach to respond to the process of motivation.
4. Motivation may be positive or negative: A positive motivation promises incentives to people (pay, rewards, bonus, etc), a negative motivation threatens the enforcement of disincentives (penalties, disciplinary action, threat of demotion, fear of loss of job, etc).
5. Motivation aims for best attainment of common objectives through best utilization of resources: Motivated employees make the best utilisation of all resources – materials, machines, technology and other work facilities and put in their best effort towards the attainment of common objectives of the enterprise.
6. Motivation is an internal feeling: It is a psychological phenomenon, which generates within an individual.

- Motivated People are More Engaged
- Fear Is a Powerful Motivator
- Appreciation and rewards are vital to employee motivation
- An excellent first step to increase self motivation is self behaviour review
- To become an efficient leader, you must be self-motivated

8.5 Steps in Motivation

The Steps in motivation involves the following steps:

1. Recognition of an unfulfilled need: The first step is to recognise or identify the unfulfilled needs of an individual. An individual cannot hope to fulfill all his unfulfilled needs at a time. He must have priorities.

XII OSS_English version CHAPTER 08.indd 104 1/7/2020 6:07:50 PM