

Figure 8.6 Maslow's Hierarchy of Needs in an Organization

Implications of Maslow's Hierarchy of Needs theory:

This model helps the managers to understand and deal with issues of employees motivation at the workplace. Managers who understand the need patterns of their staffs can help the employees to engage in the kind of work activities and provide the type of work environment that will satisfy their needs at work.

8.10 McGregor's X and Y Theory

Douglas McGregor has proposed his theories of motivation on two distinct assumptions about basic human nature: one is basically negative and labelled as theory X and the other is basically positive, labelled as theory Y.

X Theory:

X theory is traditional in its outlook. It advocates manger knows best attitude. It completely excludes workers from the process of managerial decision-making. Under theory X, four assumptions are being postulated as follows:

1. Employees inherently dislike work and whenever possible will attempt to avoid it.
2. Since employees dislike work, they must be controlled and threatened with punishment to achieve desired goals.
