programmes to address literacy gaps, scholarships and stipends for the underprivileged and comprehensive teacher training. Azad also oversaw the setting up of institutions to promote the study of traditional art, music and dance forms.

The first Indian Institute of Technology (IIT) was established in Kharagpur in 1951, during Azad's tenure. It was established as an institute of higher education that would not only offer excellent education on par with the best international universities, but also be a centre for research.
