Medha Patkar is one of the primary organizers of the Narmada Bachao Andolan (NBA), a people's movement that opposes the construction of dams on the Narmada River. Beginning in 1985, Patkar has been at the forefront of non-violent protests against the Narmada Valley Development Project, which has already and will continue to negatively affect both people and the environment. The NBA's work on the human and ecological costs helped push the World Bank to withdraw funding from the project in 1993.
