

Hansa Mehta was born into a liberal Gujarati family. While studying in England, she became acquainted with several Congress leaders and was inspired to join the freedom struggle. Mehta's life was marked by brave choices: she married a man outside her caste; she organized anti-colonial protests and served three terms in prison. A long-time advocate of equal rights for women, including in matters like inheritance and divorce, Mehta was keen to ensure that women's rights were enshrined in the Constitution.

JAIPAL SINGH MUNDA

1903–1970

Jaipal Singh Munda belonged to the Munda tribe, whose members live in the present-day states of Jharkhand, Odisha and West Bengal. He studied economics at the University of Oxford, and was a talented hockey player