

Menon’s government career almost ended before it had even begun. When he was at the station to buy a ticket to travel to Simla (the British Indian government’s summer capital), he discovered that his wallet was missing. Fortunately, a kind stranger gave him ten rupees to buy a ticket.

VP Menon is believed to have had a photographic memory. He shared this trait with several famous people in history, including