AMRIT KAUR

1889–1964

Childhood inspirations

Amrit Kaur was the only daughter of Rani Lady Harnam Singh and Raja Sir Harnam Singh of Kapurthala. Kaur's father supported the struggle for freedom and was acquainted with several members of the Congress. Kaur's early exposure to discussions on India's freedom sparked a lasting passion for social reform and the independence movement. She was particularly inspired by Gandhi, and even wrote to him in 1918 to express her desire to join him despite her parents' disapproval. He wrote back encouraging her to respect her parents' wishes. So it was only in 1930, after both her parents had died, that she travelled to his ashram and was able to fully involve herself in the fight for freedom.

"MY IDEAL HAPPINESS…CONSISTS IN DOING GOOD ALWAYS, EVEN TO THOSE WHO DO EVIL TO US, IN