the United Nations to help combat the disease, and significantly reduced the number of people who died from it.