

In 1957, Thimayya was made Chief of the Army Staff. He was only fifty-one. Unfortunately, he and the defence minister at the time did not see eye to eye, which led to conflict. Things got so bad that Thimayya wanted to resign in 1959. But he agreed to serve his full term at the request of Prime Minister Nehru, and retired in 1961.