United States at a single blow. Mujib was sworn in as prime minister in Dhaka on 10 January 1972, and by March the ten million Bangladeshis who had fled to Calcutta all returned home. Yayha was cursed by his own army for their humiliating defeat, and denounced by Bhutto as “a liar, a drunkard, and a fraud.” Thus, a quarter century after it was born, Pakistan had lost more than half its original population and the respect of most of the world.
