Afghan boundary, the Ashfaq and Asthana-led team had dependable hunters.

'Despite having the best operatives, we have avoided certain covert actions against terror outfits at the Afghanistan-Pakistan border. It has to be done internally. We have to keep in mind the pressure from the global community. They may question our outings in the region. The big question is whether the Indian establishment can take the international pressure,' Asthana said.

A confident Ashfaq couldn't agree more with his senior. He candidly said that whichever government comes to power in Afghanistan, the R&AW will certainly have its own people in powerful positions.