Meena looked at me for a moment, then swooned. I gathered her in my arms and sprinkled some water on her face. After a minute or two she regained consciousness. We wept in each other's arms.